DuBois — Diners hoping to grab a bite to eat yesterday at the DuBois Buffet were met with a posting that said the business was closed by order of the PA Department of Agriculture due to a rodent infestation.

While officials were unreachable by press time, the posted order said the restaurant, located at 128 Commons Dr., will remain closed until it can be reinspected and deemed safe by inspectors.

While some took to social media to defend the restaurant, saying the food and service are great and rodents can be found wherever food is, others argued they would likely never eat at the restaurant again.
